Hi, Charlie. On March 31 at the EAG debrief, we discussed that you and I, and no more than 6 or 8 others, would collaboratively be putting together the workplan I requested on modeling. I thought we agreed that you'd give us (me or John Young) a call the following week, which by now is last week, about kicking off this effort. I understood us to agree that the collaborative approach would work best so that you don't expend a lot of effort developing a draft plan that may be significantly different from what we expect. I also thought I heard you say that you wanted to tackle the data management workplan at the same time, and that a letter from me on that subject is unnecessary. To hit the 45 day time, I think we should be getting together pretty soon. Look forward to hearing from you.
