

Originating Party	Other Parties
AK GORDON	JIM SHANEL
HAZ. WASTE	HAZ. WASTE WIPP

ject

What happens to radionuclids when they are incinerated

Discussion

Nothing happens to the radionuclid itself but incineration drives off gases & produces more stable dense residue. ~~Material~~ The radionuclid should remain in the residue and the HEPA filters. The good aspects of incineration are that it produces a more stable dense residue and gases are driven off. Main concern is mal function because there's a lot of energy present to drive a release if one happens

Conclusions or Agreements

Distribution

LANL file

Signed

AK Gordon

